The world-famous "Aida" has previously been staged three times by the Estonian National Opera -1923, 1932 and 1965. This is the first time the viewer can see this grand piece on a grand stage in its full power and glory. This historical spectacle demands gorgeous decorations and costumes, best performers and, most certainly, a large audience.

The performance of "Aida" opened the Cairo Opera House in 1871 and the composer received the largest fee ever received for an opera.

Verdi's tale of „Aida“ takes us back to Egypt at the time of the pharaohs where the audience can enjoy the story of the Ethiopian princess Aida who loves equally both her fatherland and Radames, the commander of the hostile forces of Egypt. The eternal and timeless story offers powerful characters, impressive mass scenes, captivating dance performances and, of course, Verdi's unforgettably beautiful music.
